GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The contents of this Report are arranged in a new and, it is hoped, more readable form, in an endeavour to present a document better calculated to interest the general reader.

Part I, which deals generally with recruiting for the various branches of the British Army, incorporates the "Annual Report of recruiting for the year." This Annual Report, which has been considerably expanded compared with former years, relates to the year ending 31st December, instead of the year ending 30th September as hitherto, thus giving more up-to-date information at the time of publication.

The remaining Parts of the General Report, which in the past contained numerous tables of figures mainly compiled for internal use within the War Office, are now devoted to selected 10-year tables relating to subjects of public interest. In order to preserve the basis of comparison, the figures given in such tables will continue to relate to the year ending 30th September.

By Command of the Army Council,

H. J. Creedy

THE WAR OFFICE,

PART I.

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE YEAR ENDING 31st DECEMBER, 1938

SECTION I.—INTRODUCTION.

114 General 7579 Recruiting in 1938 for all branches of the British Army, i.e., Regular, Supplementary Reserve and Territorial, has been most satisfactory. In every month the number of enlistments has remained steadily above those of 1937. The following table shows the relative figures for each quarter of 1937 and 1938 :—

		Jan. to March.	April to June.	July to Sept.	Oct. to Dec.	Total.
Regular Army ..	1937	7,116	5,517	6,614	6,847	26,094
	1938	10,504	10,233	9,739	8,351	38,827
Supplementary Reserve	1937	1,554	1,662	1,802	1,654	6,672
	1938	3,150	3,235	2,899	4,363	13,647
Territorial Army ..	1937	14,366	15,874	5,516	9,564	45,320
	1938	16,975	26,637	7,913	25,617	77,142

The recruiting tide, which was at a low ebb in 1937, showed distinct signs of turning during the last months of that year and, by January, 1938, the flow was unmistakable. During 1938 the tide has been steadily rising and in certain cases, particularly in the Territorial Army, the rise could almost be described as a flood, as witness the intake figures for the second quarter. As regards the Regular Army, the intake for the first quarter has been exceeded only once since the Great War and never before have two consecutive quarters each yielded over 10,000 recruits as did the first two quarters of 1938.

There are many causes to which this turn of the tide can be ascribed. Fundamental changes and vast improvements have been made within all branches of the Army, which are reviewed in some detail in the pages which follow, but apart from all this there has been a considerable change in the attitude of the nation towards national defence and all that it involves. The Press has given the most valuable assistance in making known to the public the requirements of the Army and the greatly improved conditions of service which it now offers, while in all parts of the country and in every walk of life men and women have done all they can to encourage young men to enlist and to look upon service in the cause of national defence as an honourable undertaking. Whether such service be in the Regular Army, the Supplementary Reserve or the Territorial Army must depend on the circumstances surrounding an individual, but the encouraging fact is that material progress is recorded in recruiting for all three departments of the British Army.

SECTION II.—REGULAR ARMY.

CHANGES IN STANDARDS AND CONDITIONS OF ENLISTMENT.

(a) Dental and visual standards.

In October, 1937, regulations were issued permitting the provision at public expense of spectacles or artificial dentures to recruits, when necessary, provided that they are in every other respect fit for service. This has resulted in a marked increase in the total intake, since formerly a large number of men were rejected who needed only spectacles or artificial dentures to bring them up to standard but were unable to provide these themselves.

(b) Enlistment of Married Men.

Married men over 26 years of age now become entitled to all the benefits of the Married Establishment immediately on enlistment. Recruiting Officers have instructions not to accept for enlistment a married man under 26 years of age unless they are reasonably satisfied that the man's wife and family will be properly provided for.

(c) Age Limits.

In October, 1937, the upper age limit for enlistment into certain Corps was raised from 25 to 28 years and in May, 1938, to 30 years. Ex-soldiers may be accepted for re-enlistment into the Coast Defence and Anti-Aircraft Branches of the Royal Artillery up to 35 years.

(d) Coast Defence and Anti-Aircraft Branch, Royal Artillery.

Consequent on the decision to hand over to the Royal Artillery responsibility for the manning of searchlights as well as guns in the Coast and Anti-Aircraft defences, the Royal Regiment of Artillery was divided into a Field Branch and a Coast Defence and Anti-Aircraft Branch. Men are now enlisted for service in one or other of these Branches and should normally remain in that Branch throughout their service. All soldiers of the Royal Artillery are liable to be posted from one Branch to the other if circumstances so require.

In July, 1938, direct enlistment was opened for the Corps of Military Police. Formerly this Corps was maintained by voluntary transfer of soldiers from other Arms.

Owing to the responsible nature of the duties undertaken by the Corps of Military Police, the lower age limit for enlistment into this Corps has been fixed at 20 years.

(f) Long Service Engagements.

In May, 1938, regulations were issued permitting initial enlistment for 12 years with the Colours, instead of for a period with the Colours and a period with the Reserve, as is the usual practice. Men enlisting for 12 years with the Colours will have the option in due course, subject to being of good character and medically fit, of re-engaging for a further period of 9 years and thus qualifying for pension.

In view of the length of their initial engagement, a slightly higher medical standard is fixed for these men than for the ordinary recruits.

CHANGES IN PAY AND ALLOWANCES.

Certain changes in the Pay and Allowances of other ranks were brought into force on 30th April, 1938. The outlines of these are :

(i) Pay.—The initial rate of the private soldier's pay has not been changed, but the policy pursued has been to enable the soldier to earn greater emoluments in the course of his service by his own efficiency and good conduct. In addition, therefore, to certain periodical increments of ordinary pay, and to the educational and military proficiency pay previously allowed, the new regulations now provide for special proficiency pay and long service and good conduct pay, which the soldier can earn by his own merit.

(ii) Family Allowance.—The distinction between the Married Quarters Roll and the Marriage Allowance Roll has been abolished and married soldiers over 26 years of age are now entitled to all the benefits of the Married Establishment. Family Allowance at the rate of 17*s.* a week (or more in the case of ranks above serjeant) for a married soldier without children, with additions for each child in the case of those who have families, has been substituted for " Marriage Allowance" at 7*s.* a week with similar additions for children.

If a soldier occupies Public Quarters an appropriate reduction is made in the rate of Family Allowance.

(iii) Disturbance Allowance.—A married soldier over 26 years of age is now entitled to Disturbance Allowance on change of Station to compensate him for expenses incurred in establishing a home at his new station.

RECRUITING ESTABLISHMENT.

For Recruiting purposes Great Britain and Northern Ireland are divided into 15 Areas, each in charge of a Chief Recruiting Officer. Except in the London and Birmingham Areas and in Northern Ireland, each Area corresponds to the territory covered by a Division of the Territorial Army. Each Area is divided into a number of Zones, the number varying in accordance with the density of the population.

The following are the main changes made in 1938 :—

(a) A new Zone has been created in South Western Scotland, with headquarters at Dumfries, to embrace certain of the South Western and Border counties of Scotland which were formerly included in the Edinburgh Zone.

(b) An additional Zone Recruiting Officer has been posted to Inverness to assist in the working of the North of Scotland Zone which embraces Orkney, Caithness, Sutherland, Ross and Cromarty, the Hebrides, Inverness-shire and Moray. The Area covered by the Zone is so extensive that one officer could not properly supervise it.

(c) A new Zone was established in the West Riding of Yorkshire, with headquarters at Dewsbury, to embrace part of the densely populated district formerly included in the Leeds Zone.

(d) In order to allow the Army Recruiters in some country districts to cover their beats more adequately, some 60 of them have been provided with 2-seater 7 h.p. Austin cars. This has proved most satisfactory and the Army Recruiters thus provided with cars can cover very large beats successfully.

(e) Up to 31st March, 1938, Zone Recruiting Officers were paid at £217 per annum, with a limited establishment, to which officers were promoted as vacancies occurred, paid at £277 16*s*. per annum, in both cases in addition to retired pay. On 1st April, 1938, the lower rate was abolished and all Zone Recruiting Officers are now paid at a higher rate.

(f) Formerly Army Recruiters were paid 43*s*. a week, in addition to any pension earned. Above this, they were entitled to a reward for each recruit raised, the reward varying from 30*s*. for a Household Cavalry recruit to 2*s*. 9*d*. for a recruit for the Cavalry of the Line, Royal Artillery, Infantry of the Line and similar non-technical arms.

Since the amount of rewards which could be earned varied considerably between different stations, from 1st February, 1939, the payment of rewards was abolished and the pay of Army Recruiters raised to 58*s*. 6*d*. a week in the London Postal Area, 55*s*. a week in certain large provincial towns and 52*s*. a week in other stations, in all cases in addition to any pension earned.

RECRUITS PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT DEPOTS.

The first of these Depots, which was established at Aldershot in May, 1937, was moved in December, 1937, to its permanent home at Canterbury, where the old Military Hospital has been re-conditioned and enlarged. Accommodation is now available for 300 recruits.

A second Depot was opened at Burniston Barracks, Scarborough, on 19th April, 1938. At present accommodation is available for only 100 recruits, but when re-construction, which is now in progress, is completed there will be room for 300.

The two Depots have worked most successfully and the experiment has been fully justified by the results. The following table shows the total numbers dealt with from the first opening in May, 1937, until 31st December, 1938 :—

Total joined	1,947
Total posted to units as fit	1,437
Total discharged after training, having failed to reach standard	125
Total discharged medically unfit during training	32

All these men who have been posted to their units as fit would formerly have been lost to the Army and it may fairly be claimed that these Depots are doing a work of national importance.

IMPROVEMENT OF RECRUITING OFFICES.

A programme of modernizing and improving important Recruiting Offices has been begun this year. Re-construction of the office at 94, London Road, Liverpool, has been completed and this is now equipped and decorated in a thoroughly modern style. Plans are in hand for similar work at Birmingham and Stirling and work at the Central London Recruiting Depot is almost complete. It is hoped to continue this policy in the forthcoming years and gradually to provide thoroughly up-to-date and attractive Recruiting Offices in the important Towns throughout the country.

In addition a considerable sum has been expended this year in providing better furniture and other amenities for all Recruiting Offices.

SECTION III.—RE-SETTLEMENT OF THE REGULAR SOLDIER IN CIVIL LIFE.

GENERAL ASPECTS OF THE PROBLEM.

It may be desirable to make clear at the outset why a record of the arrangements made in the interest of the soldier, after he has ceased to be a soldier, should take a prominent place in this Report on Recruiting. In a short service army of the Continental model, a man's service is a normal part of his industrial life. It is not long enough to prevent his immediate re-absorption into industry. In a long service army, such as was the British Army before the Cardwell reforms, the service provided a complete career. But under the conditions of a medium service army, which relies on considerable numbers of reservists to complete its cadres on mobilization, there is a real problem. The Army takes a man out of industry at a time when his fellows are entering their industrial career and gaining year by year skill and experience. It must therefore be prepared to ensure that he shall not be handicapped on his return to civil life at the age of 24 to 26 because he has given service to the Army and the State. Moreover, the Army still has a direct interest in a man's welfare and well-being so long as his reserve obligation persists and he remains a potential soldier in an emergency.

One of the additional difficulties is that more than half the men leaving the Colours each year have been absent on foreign service for some years immediately preceding their return to civil life, and have thus still further lost touch with civil life conditions. Now, however, men from abroad normally have at least three months in this country before they leave the Colours.

Fortunately there are many favourable factors to take into account.

The soldier gains from his army service attributes of reliability, discipline, health, adaptability and a knowledge of the world which are of high value in civil life.

Further, and this point is not always realized, the modern army is in fact a perpetual training ground, both of hand and brain. A man's education is progressive throughout his service, and it is the educated man who is now required in industry. The numbers of men who, during their army service, are wholly employed in skilled trades, and the different categories of such trades, are continually increasing. Men who are not so directly employed are required in the ordinary course of their duties to have a knowledge of machinery of various kinds. The rapid changes in the types of army equipment demand of the soldier a receptive brain and the ability to master quickly the workings of new types of machinery.

All these things make him particularly fitted for the highly specialized and intensive industrial instruction which is provided for him in the last six months of his service.

THE PRINCIPLES OF RE-SETTLEMENT.

For the man who serves in the Army for the first six or seven years only of his industrial life, the service provides therefore either direct trade training and experience during his service which enable him to be re-absorbed into his trade on return to civil life, or else it gives him a mental, moral and physical background which make it possible for him to be put in the way of becoming a tradesman when the time comes. The Army now aims to re-settle all its medium service reservists into skilled industrial employment.

In addition to these there are three classes of men to be considered. There is a limited number of men who serve with the Colours for three or four years only with a correspondingly longer period of reserve liability.

These men have not been out of industry for sufficient time to unfit them to return without special preparation. They are also suitable for many types of Government and similar employment, such as the Police forces, where a low age limit is in force.

There is also a small number, some few hundred only, of men who leave the Colours at the end of 12 years without reserve liability. These men are specially suitable for various types of Government and similar employment, particularly in posts where they would be required to continue on mobilization.

It has also been found that there is no difficulty in re-absorbing into industry after Vocational Training such of these men as may desire to take up an industrial career.

The third class of man is the pensioner. Many of these men too are re-absorbed into industry. For others special types of Vocational Training are provided to fit them for such employment as gardeners, chauffeurs, groundsmen to Clubs, work as estate carpenters or general handymen, employment as commissionaires or caretakers and the like.

For warrant officers and non-commissioned officers there are various types of Government employment available, such as Barrack Wardens, War Department Police, Sergeant instructors of School O.T.C.'s, Prison Officers and the like.

For the rank and file of pensioners there are many Government posts reserved, such as messengers, storemen, labourers and so on.

The Post Office continues to absorb each year a considerable number of ex-soldiers.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

Vocational Training is now open to every well-conducted man with six years' Colour service or over who has not practised a civil trade during his army service. It is normally a six months' intensive course at very fully equipped workshops which aim at training a man up to the "improver" standard. It is found, however, that, owing to the particular suitability for training of the soldier and owing in some cases to previous knowledge of a trade, many men do in fact leave the centres as fully qualified tradesmen.

A further great advantage of the scheme is that training is entirely of a civilian nature, carried out under factory conditions. Except at two centres men live in civilian lodgings. At all centres they wear civilian clothes. The discipline is entirely of the factory type. All this is of great value in getting a man back into the civil life atmosphere. Centres at Chisledon (Swindon), Hounslow, Handsworth (Birmingham), Slough, Southampton and Waddon (Croydon), have been allotted by the Ministry of Labour (which carries out the training on behalf of the War Office), entirely to soldiers. Half the centre at Leeds is similarly allotted and a limited number of places at other Government Training Centres.

No fees are charged to soldiers for their training. Men are trained during their Army service at full rates of Army pay and allowances. Married men may bring their families to the centres. If on the married establishment, the travelling costs are paid out of public funds both to the centre and from the centre on return to civil life.

The types of trade in which instruction is provided are modified from time to time to suit industrial conditions. At present they cover mainly various sub-divisions of the engineering trade (fitting, machine operating, welding, metal work and the like). Various categories of the building trades are also provided for, and for men desiring special training, either owing to previous knowledge of the trade or residence in an area where the trade is practised, there are various miscellaneous courses principally in the furniture and vehicle body building trades, agriculture and gardening. Trades suitable for the long service man have already been referred to. For men who have been physical·training instructors special courses are provided to fit them for this occupation in civil life. Special facilities are provided to enable men who have become skilled at motor driving during their service to obtain, whilst still serving, the driving licence, the heavy goods vehicle licence and, under certain conditions, the Public Service Vehicle Licence. The co-operation of the London Passenger Transport Board is gratefully acknowledged in this connection. Courses are also provided for training in the Post Office engineering service. A total of 10,000 training places a year is available. During the calendar year 1938 (during only half of which the scheme was fully in operation) 8,151 men joined the centres or underwent courses of various sorts. 687 men failed to complete the course through various causes such as sickness, inability to profit by the instruction, or, in a few cases, conduct of an insufficiently high standard. 5,205 men are known to have obtained employment out of 6,712 men who completed the course.

MACHINERY FOR RE-SETTLEMENT.

A standard organization has been set up, aimed first at giving advice and assistance to the man from the time he reaches the last year of his service, and next to put at his disposal the whole employment organization of the Country, both the official organization of the Employment Exchanges and the voluntary organizations operating for the re-settlement of the ex-service man. The first part of the machinery is called the Unit Register Keeping Scheme. In each unit a welfare officer is appointed. He interviews the man at frequent intervals during the last year of his service. The welfare officer can obtain expert advice from the Ministry of Labour, the National Association for the Employment of Ex-Regulars and the British Legion, and through personal visits during the year by the staff of the War Office charged with this duty. Every man who does not go to a Vocational Training Course is registered during the last three months of his service with the Employment Exchange organization. For men undergoing Vocational Training there is a branch of the Employment Exchange service at each centre. All units have Old Comrades, or similar organizations working in close touch with the National Association and the British Legion. The activities of all these bodies are co-ordinated by a Re-settlement Co-ordinating Committee meeting at the Ministry of Labour upon which the War Office is represented.

SECTION IV.—ARMY RESERVE AND SUPPLEMENTARY RESERVE.

ARMY RESERVE.

The only important change in the Army Reserve has been the formation of a new Section E which is open to pensioner Warrant and Non-Commissioned Officers, who have not otherwise any liability to Reserve service. Enlistment into Section E is voluntary, the terms of engagement being for one year initially, with the option of subsequent yearly re-engagements up to certain limits, which vary in different Arms.

The object of this Section is to provide a Reserve of experienced men who will be required as instructors in Training units and in similar capacities on mobilization. Section E Reservists receive 9*d.* a day Reserve pay in addition to their pensions.

SUPPLEMENTARY RESERVE.

As shown in the table given in the introductory section, there has been a marked improvement in Recruiting for the Supplementary Reserve.

Considerable efforts have been made to explain to the public the great importance of the Supplementary Reserve and to show how much the Regular Army must rely on this source for the skilled tradesmen who will be immediately required by the technical arms in particular in the event of mobilization. Posters and pamphlets have been designed setting out the conditions of service and trades required, and valuable help has been given by the Press.

SECTION V.—TERRITORIAL ARMY.

RECRUITING.

As shown in the table given in the introductory section, recruiting for the Territorial Army has gone from strength to strength during 1938. Between 1st January and 31st December the strength of all ranks rose from 159,000 to 204,000, an increase of 28·3 per cent. This is highly satisfactory, particularly in view of the fact that intake has had to compete not only with " run off " (i.e., replacement of men who have completed their service), but also, in 1938, with a considerable increase in establishment. As a result of this increase in establishment, explained in greater detail below, the Territorial Army was deficient of 20,030 all ranks on 31st December, 1938.

ORGANIZATION AND ESTABLISHMENT.

The establishment of the Territorial Army on 1st January, 1938, was 10,237 officers and 189,421 other ranks. During the year 1938 there was a steady rise in the establishment figures. By April they had reached 10,257 officers and 191,450 other ranks and on 1st January, 1939, consequent on the reorganization, the total peace establishment of all ranks rose to 224,039.

The last named increase was due to the expansion of the Air Defence of Great Britain and the reorganization of anti-aircraft units into five divisions.

In the winter 1935–36 the 47th and 56th Divisions had been amalgamated into the London Division and the 1st A.A. division had been formed. In the winter 1936–37 the 46th (North Midland) Division was abolished and the units redistributed and the 2nd A.A. Division was formed. During 1938, however, greater reorganization took place. During the summer certain new anti-aircraft units had been formed in Scotland, and on 1st November a fuller expansion provided for the creation of an anti-aircraft corps of five divisions located respectively at Uxbridge, Nottingham, Edinburgh, Chester and Reading.

At the same time the Field Force, T.A., was reorganized to permit the formation of one mobile division, three motor divisions, each of two infantry brigades, and two field regiments, R.A., (with other troops, including a motor cycle battalion) and nine infantry divisions, each of three brigades.

The Territorial Army, therefore, rose to a strength of 17 divisions, plus a mobile division (not organized as such in time of peace).

CONDITIONS OF SERVICE.

Conditions of Service in the Territorial Army were considerably improved during the year 1938.

(a) Family Allowances during Training or on Embodiment.

The old scale of Marriage Allowance, viz., 7*s*. a week for the wife with additions for children, was replaced by " Family Allowance," at the rate of 17*s* a week (more in the case of ranks above serjeant), with similar additions for children.

(b) Equipment and Camp Conditions.

During the annual training season, 1938, considerable improvements were made in the engineer services provided for Territorial Army camps. A new and larger design of cookhouse was introduced and hot shower-baths were installed at nearly all camps. These improvements undoubtedly produced greatly increased comfort for the men.

SECTION VI.—AUXILIARY TERRITORIAL SERVICE.

The Auxiliary Territorial Service (for women) was formed under the provisions of Army Order 199 of 1938 to provide for the performance of certain duties in the event of mobilization.

This Service is raised under somewhat similar conditions to those for the Territorial Army, except that members sign an enrolment form (A.F. E.511) giving an undertaking to serve in case of a national emergency, and are not actually enlisted.

The Auxiliary Territorial Service is raised by companies on a Territorial basis throughout the United Kingdom: companies are affiliated to military units in peace.

The Auxiliary Territorial Service comprises two sections, i.e., General Service and Local Service. The age limits for General Service are 18 to 43 years and for Local Service 18 to 50 years. Enrolment is originally for four years, and personnel may re-enrol for periods of one, two, three or four years at a time.

The duties the Auxiliary Territorial Service are required to perform are purely non-combatant and comprise :—

(a) Motor Drivers.
(b) Clerical duties at Headquarters and establishments.
(c) General duties (cooks, orderlies, storewomen) at stations in the United Kingdom.

The personnel are required to perform a minimum of ten drills a year, and to attend camp for a period of not less than eight and not more than fifteen days in alternate years if so required. Each drill consists of not less than one attendance of a minimum period of one hour's training.

No pay is issued in peace, but grants are issued for attendance at camp. This grant is dependent, in the case of members, upon their attending at least ten drills during the year.

In addition, a grant of 10*s*. towards travelling expenses, etc., is made to officers and members who attend at least ten drills during the year.

A uniform of the approved pattern is being issued. Officers provide their own and receive an outfit grant of £16.

The Auxiliary Territorial Service also supplies companies to meet similar needs of the Royal Air Force.

The present establishments provide for :—

	Officers.	Members.
For the Army	950	19,965
For the R.A.F.	148	1,690
Total	1,098	21,655

It is not anticipated there will be any difficulty in raising these numbers.

SECTION VII.—PUBLIC INFORMATION.

An important feature of recent policy has been to make known to the nation the requirements of the Army and the advantages which it offers to a young man and thus to dispel that apathy which was so regrettably noticeable in recent years. To achieve this a Directorate of Public Relations was established at the War Office in October, 1937,

The duty of this Directorate is to control all forms of publicity and to ensure that the nation is supplied with the fullest information about the Army in all its aspects.

The following are some of the more important methods by which it is sought to achieve this :—

This year an entirely new set of Posters has been designed and has been displayed throughout the country on sites hired by contract. Some of the posters are reproductions of photographs showing the latest weapons such as the Bren Gun, the 3·7-inch Anti-Aircraft Gun, and a mechanically drawn Field Gun; others are intended to appeal especially to particular districts and special posters have been designed for display in Scotland, Wales, Lancashire, Yorkshire and Northern Ireland, emphasizing the Regiments recruited in these districts.

Separate designs are used for the Territorial Army and, during the year, twelve different varieties of Territorial Army poster have been on display. A special poster to illustrate the Auxiliary Territorial Service was produced when the new scheme was launched.

(b) Books and Pamphlets.

The handbook " The Army " which had been made obsolete by many recent changes within the Army has been entirely re-written in a more attractive form. The handbook " Careers for Boys " is now in process of revision and the new edition will be issued shortly.

A series of small pamphlets and leaflets, dealing with particular arms or branches of the Service has also been produced.

All of these are to be obtained free of charge at any Recruiting Office, Territorial Army Drill Hall or Employment Exchange. The two handbooks can also be obtained at Post Offices.

The standard leaflets for the Territorial Army, i.e., " The Defence of Britain," the Anti-Aircraft leaflet, and the " Conditions of Service " leaflet, have been re-issued in new editions. In the case of the " Conditions of Service " leaflet two new editions were produced during the year. A series " Notes on Territorial Army Publicity " which reached an issue of 1,200 copies and appeared at approximate intervals of two months, served to keep Territorial Army Associations and units in touch with recruiting material which was available. In consequence, Territorial Army publicity throughout the country has been considerably increased.

A most comprehensive series of photographs has been produced illustrating every phase of Army life. Photographs are included of weapons, field training, indoor training of all sorts, barracks, cookhouses, institutes, troopships and various kinds of sport.

The photographs have been produced in various sizes. They have been shown at various exhibitions, a great many have been supplied to the Press and they have been circulated for display to Recruiting Offices. An admirable exhibition of them was held at the Ilford Galleries, Holborn.

The Directorate of Public Relations is responsible for liaison with the Press and relations have been most cordial during the period under review.

Visits by the Press to units, establishments and service demonstrations have been specially arranged during the year.

Apart from the specially arranged visits already indicated, the Press section has made provision for the attendance of Press representatives, News Reel Companies and the British Broadcasting Corporation at ceremonies and parades of public interest, such as visits by Royalty, the opening of new barracks, the departure of troopships, etc.

(e) Films.

During the year a certain number of 16 mm. films has been produced, and have been displayed in an automatic apparatus installed at the Services Pavilion at the Glasgow Exhibition. These films depict such scenes as the Changing of the Guard, boys training at the Military College of Science, life at the Recruits' Physical Development Depot, training at the Royal Army Service Corps Driving School, Feltham, motor-cycling in the Army, etc.

The anti-aircraft film "The Gap" continued to be shown on a commercial basis and through the courtesy of Mr. Oscar Deutsch of the Odeon Theatres, Limited, a film "Territorial Cavalcade" was produced and given wide public circulation.

Facilities have also been accorded to various film companies during the year for the production of a number of films which include scenes of Army life either past or present.

Relations with the British Broadcasting Corporation have been most cordial throughout the year and a series of regimental broadcasts to cover the winter season has been arranged.

Army items have also appeared in the television programmes and Army personnel have on several occasions broadcast their experiences in the form of short talks in Regional programmes.

(g) Exhibitions.

Army Exhibitions and Army Stands at various Exhibitions and Shows have proved most successful and have attracted large numbers of visitors wherever they have been held. This form of publicity has been found to be most useful in that it gives the public an opportunity of seeing and handling specimens of military equipment and of putting questions about Army life to soldiers on duty at the Stands, and a high tribute is due to those who have been employed on this duty. By their unfailing courtesy and readiness to answer questions and give explanations they have shown to the nation how high is the quality of the men in the ranks of the Army.

The following are some of the more important Exhibitions held in 1938:—

(i) A Pavilion was erected in conjunction with the Royal Air Force at the Empire Exhibition at Glasgow. The items shown were varied in each month and the general plan was to exhibit the more important features of each Arm in turn. As far as the Infantry was concerned, the main emphasis was naturally laid upon the Scottish Regiments. The Pavilion attracted a continuous stream of visitors throughout the whole six months of the Exhibition.

(ii) Through the courtesy of the London Passenger Transport Board, a site was available at Charing Cross Underground Station for three weeks in August and September.

For the first part of this time the activities of the Boys' Technical Schools were displayed and for the latter part the Territorial Army.

Boys from the Army Technical Schools were to be seen actually carrying out the training which they undergo at the Schools, which aroused considerable interest among the many visitors.

(iii) On a smaller scale stands were established at a number of Exhibitions and Shows of varying importance throughout the country. The following were among the more important:

Royal Agricultural Show, Cardiff; Bath and West Show, Plymouth; West Midland Agricultural Show, Shrewsbury; Royal Tournament, Olympia; Shrewsbury Flower Show; Welsh Industries Fair, Cardiff; and at Nottingham, Leicester, Ipswich, Stoke-on-Trent, Newcastle-on-Tyne and many smaller towns.

(iv) Through the courtesy of the Board of Education an Exhibition illustrating " Science in the Army " has been arranged at the Science Museum, South Kensington. The Exhibition was opened on 18th November, 1938, by the Secretary of State for War and will continue until 30th April, 1939. It illustrates the varied use of scientific methods in the modern Army.

(v) Territorial Army personnel participated in the Royal Tournament and took their place in the Aldershot and other Tattoos.

(h) Marches by Troops.

One of the most effective methods of making the Army known to the public is to send bodies of troops to districts where they are rarely seen. This method has been extensively applied in 1938 and many parts of the country have been visited. At every place where the columns halted, displays were given and the public were encouraged to examine the vehicles and equipment and to ask questions. The relations between the troops and their visitors have been invariably cordial and this personal contact has been most valuable. The greatest thanks are due to the civic authorities who everywhere gave the troops a sincere welcome and gladly gave their assistance in every way possible.

The following are some of the more important marches carried out in 1938:—

(i) A column which assembled at Leicester and visited Derby, Chesterfield, Nottingham, Grantham, Skegness, Grimsby, Hull and the holiday resorts on the Yorkshire Coast.

(ii) A column which assembled at Leeds and visited Stockport, Manchester, Rochdale, Burnley, Blackburn, Preston, Blackpool, Lancaster, Carlisle, the West Cumberland coast, Southport, Liverpool, Birkenhead and Warrington.

(iii) A column composed of troops from Catterick Camp visited Durham and Tyneside.

(iv) A column which visited Reading, Northampton, Coventry, Birmingham, Worcester, Gloucester and Bristol.

(v) A column which toured through Wessex.

(vi) To illustrate the anti-aircraft weapons in use by anti-aircraft units of the Territorial Army, a Mobile Display Group carried out a series of displays in South Wales and Lancashire during the Autumn. It also visited the Empire Exhibition, Glasgow.

In all these columns the public were able to see the most modern vehicles, arms and equipment and great interest was aroused.

SECTION VIII.—DISCIPLINE.

The discipline of the Army continues to be maintained at a high standard. The number of trials by Courts-Martial is slightly higher than that of the preceding year, but remains below those of the years previous to 1937.

During the year under review a Committee was constituted to examine the existing system of trial by Courts-Martial under the Army Act and matters incidental thereto. Officers and soldiers were invited to submit to the Committee any constructive proposals for the improvement of the Court-Martial system.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1936.

It should be noted that, except in Part I and Table 1, Part II, the tables for the Regular Army refer only to regimental strength. Consequently they do not include men serving on the Staff and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments, such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army, or the Supplementary Reserve.

By Command of the Army Council

H. J. Creedy.

The War Office,
7th March, 1938.

PART I

RECRUITING

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 30th SEPTEMBER, 1937.

1. General.—The total number of recruits finally approved during the year ending 30th September, 1937, was 24,270, as against a total of 21,975 for the previous year. There was therefore a net increase of 2,295.

A considerable increase in establishment was authorised in Army Estimates, 1937, and the deficiency of other ranks in the peace establishment of the Army on 30th September, 1937, was approximately 20,000.

2. Analysis of Figures.—The numbers rejected, attested and finally approved are given in the last column of Table 2 on page 14. For convenience the figures regarding applicants for enlistment for the last four years have been analysed and the salient figures, together with percentages, are set out below :—

	1933-34		1934-35		1935-36		1936-37
	Numbers	Percentage	Numbers	Percentage	Numbers	Percentage	Numbers	Percentage
Finally approved ...	(a) 25,287	31·6	(b) 25,448	37·5	(c) 21,815	37·9	(d) 23,937	46·9
Rejected on medical and physical grounds	54,639	68·4	28,603	42·2	23,074	40·0	13,841	27·1
Deserted or failed to appear for attestation			1,895	2·8	2,239	3·9	1,948	3·8
Rejected as unsuitable on other accounts			11,882	17·5	10,424	18·2	11,346	22·2
Total applicants ...	79,926	100·0	67,828	100·0	57,552	100·0	51,072	100·0

(a) Exclusive of 277 Headquarter recruits making a total of 25,564 finally approved.
(b) ,, ,, 233 ,, ,, ,, 25,681 ,,
(c) ,, ,, 160 ,, ,, ,, 21,975 ,,
(d) ,, ,, 333 ,, ,, ,, 24,270 ,,

Rejections on medical grounds show a marked fall which may be attributed to the introduction of graded medical standards introduced in November, 1936.

Of the 51,072 applicants, 35,618 (69·7 per cent.) were in employment when offering themselves for enlistment.

3. Medical Standards.—(a) The grading of recruits into four categories, " Horse and Foot " class, " Mechanized " class, " Mechanical Transport " class and " Lines of Communication " class, was brought into operation on 1st December, 1936. Up to the end of September, 1937, 1,845 men had been enlisted in classes below " Horse and Foot."

(b) Towards the end of the year under review it was decided further to review medical standards and to provide glasses and dentures for men requiring them in order to bring them up to the necessary visual and dental standards. The aural standard was also modified.

It was also decided to accept men suffering from minor disabilities which would readily yield to operational treatment, provided that they signified their willingness to undergo an operation in a military hospital.

The instructions giving effect to these decisions did not take effect during the year under review but will operate in the future.

4. Recruits' Physical Development Depot.—The experiment carried out at the Army School of Physical Training of giving special training to a squad of recruits who were below standard was so successful that it was decided to establish a special depot for this purpose.

A Recruits' Physical Development Depot was therefore opened at Aldershot on 19th May, 1937. The staff consists of a Commandant, an Officer in charge of Physical Training, a Medical Officer who is a hygiene specialist, Warrant Officers of the Army Physical Training Staff and Army Educational Corps and a number of sergeants and corporals drawn from Infantry regiments.

The recruits are sent direct from Recruiting Offices to the Depot, where they receive special diet and a special course of remedial physical training, which is graduated under expert supervision according to the particular needs of the individuals. They also receive educational training and some elementary drill.

Men are retained at the Depot up to three months, but a large proportion reach the required physical standard more rapidly than this and are posted to their regimental depots before the three months have expired. While under training at the Depot, men wear the uniform of the regiment or corps for which they have enlisted.

Up to the end of September, 1937, 391 men had been sent to the Depot, 156 of these had reached the required standard and had been posted to the regimental depots, two had been discharged as having failed to reach the standard and the remainder were still under training. The Depot was moved in November, 1937, to its permanent location at Canterbury, where the Old Military Hospital is being re-conditioned in order to provide accommodation for it.

5. " At Homes " and Recruiting Marches.—" At Homes " and Recruiting Marches have been continued in the summer of 1937. The Southern Command was again able to arrange a number of marches of all arms. The King's Own Scottish Borderers visited the Border Counties of Scotland, and a very large mechanical column, composed of the latest vehicles of all arms, toured the East Anglian seaside resorts in August. This column aroused considerable interest and its demonstrations were everywhere attended by large crowds.

6. Recruiting Stands.—Stands were again set up at the Royal Tournament, the Royal Agricultural Show, the Bath and West Show, the West Midland Agricultural Show and other important shows and exhibitions throughout the country.

A model showing the movement of a force from a base port to its concentration area was displayed at Charing Cross Underground station in London in February, 1937, and at Lime Street Station, Liverpool, in September, 1937. Large numbers visited the model on both occasions. The sites were lent to the War Office free of charge by the London Passenger Transport Board and the London, Midland and Scottish Railway Company, respectively.

7. Supplementary Reserve (Infantry of the Line).—The Infantry Section of the Supplementary Reserve, for which recruiting was opened on 1st September, 1936, showed satisfactory results throughout the year. Up to 30th September, 1937, 8,955 men applied to enlist, of whom 4,157 were enlisted. 3,491 of these were under 18 years of age.

During the year 1,133 men enlisted from this section into the Regular Army, of whom 590 were between 17½ and 18 years of age. Enlistment into the Regular Army is not permitted under the age of 17½ years.

8. Supplementary Reserve. Categories " A," " B," and " C."—This report is confined to recruiting for Categories " A " and " C " of the Supplementary Reserve for which the Regular Army Recruiting Service is responsible. Recruiting for Category " B " is the responsibility of Territorial Army Associations.

Categories " A " and " C " are maintained in order to complete on mobilization certain arms and branches of the Regular Army not provided for by the ordinary Army Reserve. The requirements are mainly technical and the Supplementary Reserve is, therefore, primarily a reserve of tradesmen.

During the year 2,032 recruits were taken as against 2,542 last year, a decrease of 510. The total requirements were 9,600 and the deficit on 30th September was therefore 7,568.

9. Measures to improve Recruiting.—(a) Various measures were introduced on 1st April, 1937, to improve conditions within the Army and to make the service more attractive. The most important of these were :—

(i) Improvement in the daily scale of rations.

(ii) Increased ration allowance to soldiers on furlough.

(iii) Reduction of stoppages and the free issue of such articles as regimental canes, mugs, &c., which were formerly paid for by the soldier.

(iv) Improvements in barracks.

(v) Abolition of " holding," for an extra year, men serving abroad.

(b) In August, 1937, the age limit for enlistment was raised to 28 years for certain corps for which the limit was formerly 25 years.

(c) In September, 1937, instructions were issued permitting men over 21 years to sleep out of barracks.

(d) It was decided to permit the enlistment of married men, thus bringing the Army regulations into conformity with those of the Royal Navy. The instructions permitting these enlistments did not take effect during the year under review, but will operate in the future.

TABLE 9.—CHANGES SINCE THE INTRODUCTION OF SHORT SERVICE.

The Army Enlistment Act of 1870, under which recruiting for short service was first authorised, was promulgated by Army Circular dated 10th August, 1870.

The subsequent changes in short service terms of enlistment, prior to the introduction of the terms now current, were:—

Authority.	Arm.	Years with		Remarks.
		Colours.	Reserve.
1874, G.O. 34	All arms	..	..	The proportions in which recruits for long and short service respectively could be enlisted were defined.
1874, A.C. Cl. 67	Cavalry R.A. R.E.	8	4

NOTES.—Courts-Martial on Native Troops and Civilians are not included.

The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.

NOTE.—In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence, these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence. The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined," the punishment is entered under both headings.

(a) "Guilty but insane" are included both in "Acquittals" and "Sentences."

(b) The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the proceedings.

(c) Included under "Miscellaneous Military Offences."

NOTES AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period of one year in Section A, and in certain circumstances for a further period to complete two years from the date of transfer to the Reserve. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914–1918 it was not revived until 1925.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It formerly included Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Reservists are allowed to re-engage for further service in Section D (for periods of 4 years as a rule) subject to discharge on attaining the age of 42 (45 in the case of men of certain trades). To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 901 in 1926.

The Army Reserve (Section A) was recalled to the Colours in 1927, in connection with the formation of the Shanghai Defence Force, and in 1937 in connection with the Palestine emergency.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1935.

It should be noted that, except in Part I and Table 1, Part II, the tables for the Regular Army refer only to regimental strength. Consequently they do not include men serving on the Staff and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments, such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army, or the Supplementary Reserve.

By Command of the Army Council,

H. J. Creedy.

The War Office,
8th March, 1937.

PART I

RECRUITING

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 30th SEPTEMBER, 1936.

1. General.—During the recruiting year 1935–36 there has been a reluctance on the part of young men to join the Army and, on the part of their parents, to put their boys into military service. In spite of redoubled efforts on the part of the Recruiting Staff, the intake for 1936 has been less than that for 1935 by 3,706 recruits, the figures being 21,975 and 25,681, respectively.

In order to bring the Army up to strength some 32,000 recruits were required during the year under review, which leaves a deficit of approximately 10,000 on 30th September, 1936.

2. Analysis of Figures.—The numbers rejected, attested, and finally approved are given in the last column of Table 2, on page 14. For convenience the figures regarding applicants for enlistment for the last three years have been analysed, and the significant figures together with percentages are set out below.

	1933–34.		1934–35.		1935–36.
	Numbers.	per-centage.	Numbers.	per-centage.	Numbers.	per-centage.
Finally approved	(a) 25,287	31·5	(b) 25,448	37·5	(c) 21,815	37·9
Rejected on Medical or Physical Grounds	54,639	68·5	28,603	42·2	23,074	40·0
Deserted or Failed to appear for Attestation			1,895	2·8	2,239	3·9
Rejected as unsuitable on other accounts			11,882	17·5	10,424	18·2
Total applicants	79,926	100·0	67,828	100·0	57,552	100·0

(a) Exclusive of 277 " Headquarter " recruits making a total of 25,564 finally approved.
(b) Exclusive of 233 " Headquarter " recruits making a total of 25,681 finally approved.
(c) Exclusive of 160 " Headquarter " recruits making a total of 21,975 finally approved.

From the above figures it will be seen that the percentage of final approvals shows a slight improvement, whilst the rejections on medical and physical grounds is on the down grade. During the year, examining medical officers rejected 29.7 per cent. of the men appearing before them, as against 30.6 per cent. in 1934–35. The apparent discrepancy between the figure of 29.7 per cent. and that of 40.0 per cent. shewn in the table above is accounted for by the fact that Recruiters are permitted to reject applicants on physical grounds, before the stage of examination by a medical officer is reached.

(It should here be observed that this power of rejection by Recruiters on physical grounds has now been considerably curtailed and, in future, unless glaring defects are evident, all eligible would-be recruits will appear before the examining medical officer.)

Of the 57,552 applicants to enlist 36,707 (or 63.9 per cent.) were in some form of employment when they offered themselves at a recruiting office.

The quality of the enlisted men has been excellent.

3. Adverse factors affecting recruiting.—This Report which concerns itself with facts, is not the proper place in which to investigate the various causes which have conspired together to produce the falling-off in the intake of recruits ; it would be difficult to exclude matters of opinion and conjecture. Suffice to say that the whole field of possible causes is under continuous examination by the War Office, and schemes for removing any obstacles to recruiting which are thought to exist are drawn up and carefully weighed.

In this matter the War Office is grateful for the assistance given by the Press and those private persons who have been good enough to submit recruiting suggestions and offers of help. As an example of the former the recruiting competition conducted by the Daily Mail can be instanced. The keen interest in recruiting taken by private correspondents is illustrated by the fact that on occasions the daily postal delivery at the War Office has contained as many as fifty letters containing suggestions as to how recruiting might be improved.

4. Propaganda Measures.—The fewer the recruits coming forward, the more intensive must be the activities of the Recruiting Staff. During the year these activities have been widely developed and many new experiments have been tried. The need for greater publicity has been realized and advantage has been taken of professional assistance. A publicity bureau for recruiting has been established in the War Office and an advertising agency with the services of experienced journalists has been employed. This agency works in close co-operation both with the Press and the principal cinema firms. Greater and more extended use has been made of posters, for the design of which an advertising firm has been engaged. A distribution from door to door of two and a half million broadsheets setting forth the advantages of Army life has been made. Over 100 pictures of Army life have been included in newsreel programmes shown throughout the country, and the War Office has actively co-operated in the production of a pictorial film with an authentic background of Army life. Other suitable films for which the loan of troops and facilities have been applied for have been assisted as far as possible. Efforts have also been made by means of films and illustrations in the Press to acquaint the public with the greatly improved type of accommodation that is now being constructed for the Army both in the way of barracks and of married quarters.

5. "At Homes" and Recruiting Marches.—One of the most effective ways of advertising the Army is for the Army to show itself. This year every effort within the money available has been made to effect this in two ways, first by "At Homes," and, secondly, by recruiting marches. Nearly every regimental depot and garrison has had "At Homes" of some sort or other. Recruiting marches are rather more difficult to arrange as garrisons have been depleted and training cannot be neglected. Much, however, has been accomplished in this direction, particularly by the Southern Command who have been able to arrange visits by mechanized units to Birmingham, the Forest of Dean and cities and towns in the West County; an excursion was also made into South Wales in the Western Command.

6. Recruiting Stalls.—Whenever possible the Recruiting Service sets up recruiting stalls with Army exhibits at shows, exhibitions, etc. Examples of this form of publicity were to be seen at the Royal Tournament, the Bath and West Show, Boys' Exhibitions, etc. The Royal Agricultural Society have also consented in future to allow a Recruiting Stall to be set up at their annual Royal Show.

7. Revised Medical Standards.—During the year a committee investigated the question whether it would be possible to lower the physical standard in order to accept a larger number of recruits. While the conclusion reached is that for general service no alteration is desirable, it has been recommended that some modifications of the standard may be possible in those Corps where certain minor disabilities are of less importance than they are in the Cavalry, Artillery and Infantry. The recommendations of this committee have been adopted and, in future, all recruits are to be divided into four medical categories as follows:—

(1) Horse and Foot Class.—Personnel who are called upon to march, carry a pack, shoot, and eat hard rations for variable periods, i.e., front line fighting troops who may have to move on foot.

(2) Mechanized Class.—Personnel who are not called upon to march but who must be able to shoot and subsist on hard rations, e.g., Royal Tank Corps, mechanized artillery, etc.

(3) Mechanical Transport Class.—Motor and lorry drivers who normally receive cooked rations and who are not required to march; acuity of vision need only be that necessary for driving a vehicle, e.g., drivers of the Royal Army Service Corps.

(4) Lines of Communication Class.—Personnel who are in the main tradesmen, i.e., clerks, artificers, mechanics, storemen, issuers, hospital orderlies, etc. These men are not required to march nor do they have to subsist on hard rations; they only require sufficient vision for their trade.

8. Recruits below Physical Standard.—An interesting experiment has been carried out during the year of attesting men who are below the physical standard with the view to seeing whether by physical training and improved diet they cannot be brought up to that standard within a reasonable period. 33 such recruits were sent down to the Army School of Physical Training at Aldershot with the result that no less than 31 of them have been rendered fit enough to start training at their own regimental depots. The question of opening a permanent depot for these " probationer " recruits is under consideration.

9. Other steps to improve recruiting.—Other steps that have been taken to improve recruiting include the grant of an extra week's furlough to serving soldiers on the understanding that they devote that time to searching for recruits for their own regiment. Investigations are also being undertaken in consultation with the other Departments concerned to ascertain whether it may not be possible to obtain recruits for the British Army from the Dominions and the Colonies.

10. Supplementary Reserve (Infantry of the Line).—A further important innovation has been the establishment of an Infantry Section of the Supplementary Reserve. Men who join this body are obliged to serve for only six months with the Colours and subsequently to come up for a period of 14 days' training annually for a period of six years. It is hoped that two main objects will thus be achieved. In the first place a considerable number of men, unwilling to enlist for a long period may be prepared to do so for a short one, and, having seen what the life is like, may be willing to stay on as Regular soldiers; as high a proportion as 60 per cent. of pre-war infantry recruits came in through the Special Reserve. In the second place, those who remain in the Supplementary Reserve will form a useful asset on mobilization.

Recruiting for this branch of the Supplementary Reserve started on 1st September, 1936, so that only one month's progress falls within the scope of this Report. During this month 534 recruits, 334 of whom were under 18 years of age, were taken from some 1,385 applicants.

11. Supplementary Reserve Categories "A" and " C."—This Report is confined to Categories "A" and " C " of the Supplementary Reserve which are recruited for by the Regular Army Recruiting Service; recruiting for Category " B " is the responsibility of Territorial Army Associations.

Categories "A" and " C " are maintained in order to complete on mobilization certain arms and branches of the Regular Army not provided for by the ordinary Army Reserve. The requirements are mainly technical and the Supplementary Reserve, therefore, is primarily a reserve of tradesmen.

The situation as regards recruit intake into Categories "A" and "C" remains satisfactory on the whole. 2,542 recruits were taken during the year as against 2,006 last year, an increase of 536. The total requirements for the year were, 3,445 and the deficit on 30th September, 1936, therefore was 903.

The principal trades in which vacancies still exist are Linemen (Royal Corps of Signals), Technical Mechanical Transport Clerks (Royal Army Service Corps), Blacksmiths, Coppersmiths, Storemen, Wheelers and Heavy Lorry Drivers (Royal Army Ordnance Corps). There is a waiting list for the light lorry drivers, but there appears to be a lack of candidates coming forward to drive heavy lorries; this may be accounted for, to a certain extent, by the fact that these men must be possessed of a Public Service or Heavy Goods Vehicle licence. The annual bounty payable to the drivers is £6 and they are not required to undergo any form of training in peace.

12. Education.—Recruitment of personnel suitable to act as Educational Instructors in the Army Educational Corps continues to proceed steadily, although there are still vacancies. This is an opening that presents opportunities for young trained teachers. The rates of pay, conditions of service, and prospects of promotion are all good and should prove an attraction to many who are interested in adult education.

This phase of Army life is also of interest to those, who, while not possessing the academic qualification required for direct enlistment for this particular duty, yet have received a good general education.

Any recruit who is up to Matriculation standard may, after a short period of soldiering, apply for transfer to the Army Educational Corps. This is granted if the individual concerned shows adaptability; and thus a new and well paid course of life is open to the candidate.

13. Discipline.—The discipline of the Army continues to be maintained at a high standard. The number of trials by Courts-Martial has dropped from 2,059 in 1932 to 1,876 in 1936, a decrease of 35 trials on the previous year.

The reduction in the award of the heavier sentences recorded in 1935 is still maintained, only 5 penal servitude sentences having been awarded (compared with 12 in 1935), and there has been a decrease of 9 in the number of discharges with ignominy on the previous year.

NOTES.—Courts-Martial on Native Troops and Civilians are not included.

The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.

NOTES AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period of one year in Section A, and in certain circumstances for a further period to complete two years from the date of transfer to the Reserve. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914–1918 it was not revived until 1925.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It formerly included Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Reservists are allowed to re-engage for further service in Section D (for periods of 4 years as a rule) subject to discharge on attaining the age of 42 (45 in the case of men of certain trades). To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 901 in 1926.

The Army Reserve (Section A) was recalled to the Colours in 1927, in connection with the formation of the Shanghai Defence Force.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1934.

It should be noted that, except in Part I and Table 1, Part II, the tables for the Regular Army refer only to regimental strength. Consequently they do not include men serving on the Staff and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments, such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army, or the Supplementary Reserve.

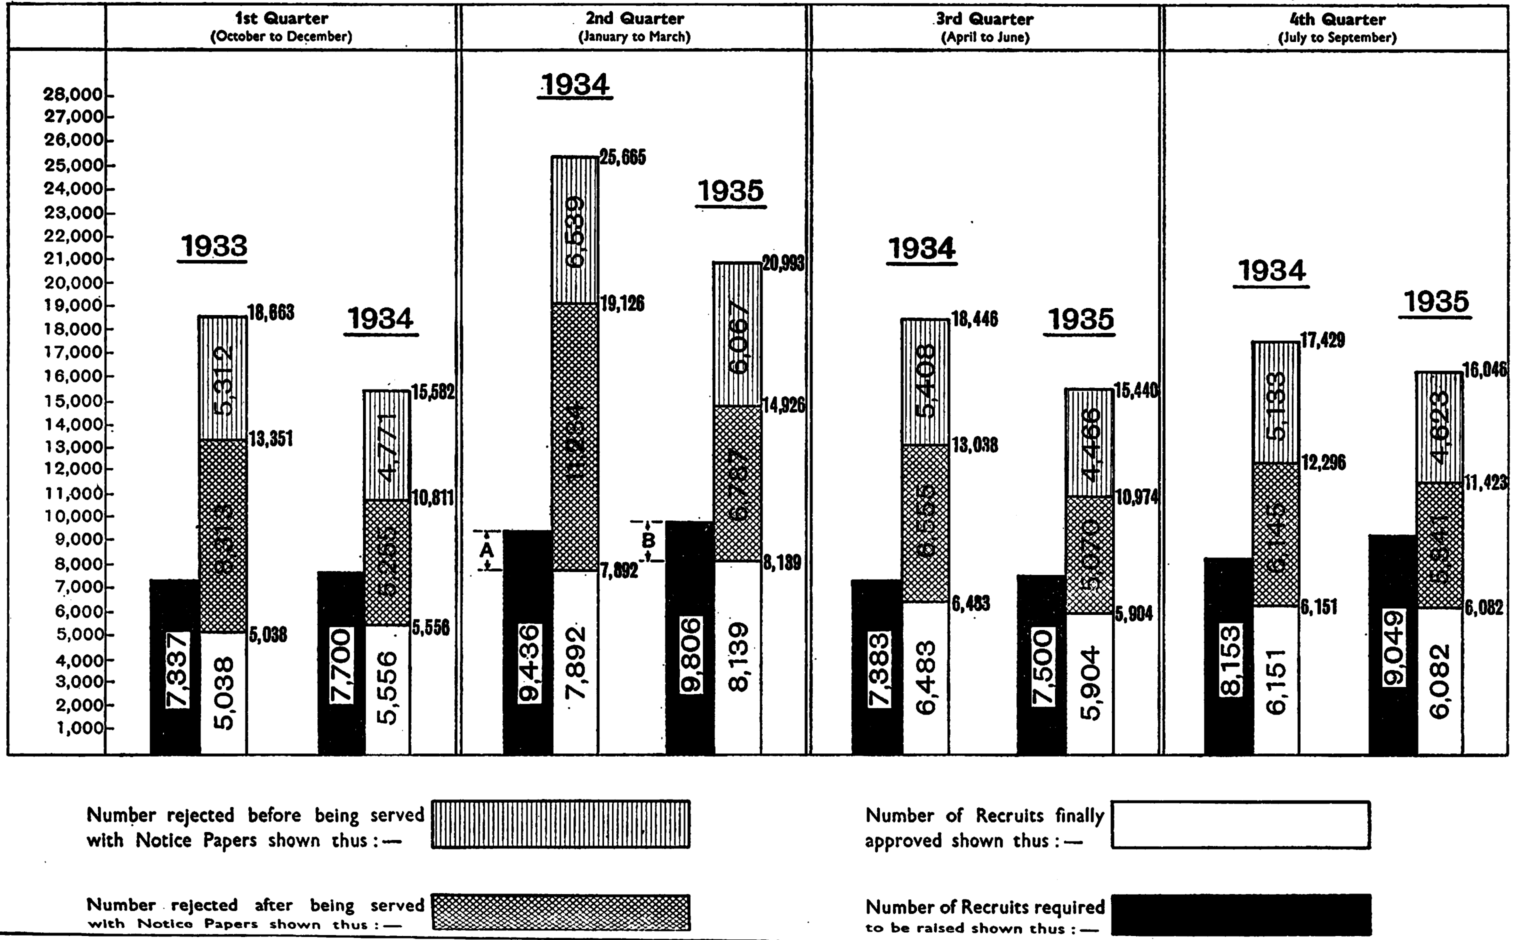
By Command of the Army Council,

H. J. Creedy

The War Office,
27th February, 1936.

PLATE I.

Comparisons showing Numbers (by quarters) who applied for Enlistment and were Rejected or Finally Approved during the Recruiting Years, 1933-4 & 1934-5



PART I

RECRUITING

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 30th SEPTEMBER, 1935.

1. General.—Recruiting for the year ended 30th September, 1935 has been productive of very much the same results as the year ended 30th September, 1934, the numbers finally approved being 25,681 this year as against 25,564 last year, showing an increase of 117.

2. Results by Quarters.—The diagram opposite (Plate I) shows side by side the results achieved each quarter for the two recruiting years 1933–34 and 1934–35. The explanation of the blocks is as follows :—

Black Blocks.

The black blocks represent the numbers of recruits required to be raised each quarter. This figure, which is issued by the War Office quarterly in advance to the Recruiting Service, is based on the " run-off " for the quarter plus or minus any impending increase or decrease in peace establishments. By " run-off " is meant the numbers to be discharged or transferred to the reserve during the quarter plus an estimate of the numbers who may be expected to leave the colours for various reasons such as invaliding, discharge by purchase, unlikely to become efficient, etc.

To meet the requirements of Parliamentary finance the number of recruits to be raised in any twelve months is calculated for the financial year, and not for the recruiting year. Consequently in order to gauge correctly how far recruiting falls short of requirements it is necessary to refer to the situation at the end of the second quarter of each recruiting year. The deficit at the end of the two financial years 1933–34 and 1934–35 was 1,544 and 1,667 respectively. These are represented on the diagram by the differences in height marked " A " and " B " alongside the black blocks for the second quarter.

It should be noted that the number of recruits to be raised each quarter is cumulative throughout the financial year, that is to say, any deficit at the end of one quarter is carried forward and added to the requirements of the next quarter. Any surplus is similarly carried forward and deducted. This rule is applied to every regiment and corps.

Heights of the Columns.

The heights of the columns placed to the right of the black blocks represent the number of men who apply each quarter at a recruiting office for particulars of enlistment.

Vertically Hatched Blocks.

The vertically hatched blocks represent the number of applicants who are rejected at sight and who are not served with notice papers. These applicants may be men over or under age, married men, men obviously not up to the physical standard required, or persons who have some other self-evident impediment which debars them from proceeding further with the process of enlistment.

Cross-hatched Blocks.

The cross-hatched blocks represent the numbers rejected after having been served with a notice paper. These rejections are on account of three main causes, namely, physical, medical and educational. Other less numerous causes are unsatisfactory references, failure to appear for attestation, and recruits found "unsuitable for Corps" after attestation.

White Blocks.

The white blocks represent the number of recruits finally approved quarter by quarter.

3. Observations.—

Disposal of Applicants to enlist.
Percentage Table.

(For meaning of hatching see Plate I.)

Quarter.	Vertically hatched.	Cross-hatched.	White.

1935	29	33	38

1934	30	35	35
1935	29	33	38

From the above table it will be seen that the proportion of applicants rejected at sight before having been served with a notice paper remains remarkably constant. It is satisfactory to note that the proportion of physical, medical and educational rejections is showing a decline; this was particularly marked during the first six months of this year compared with the corresponding period last year.

In general terms the present situation is that if three men come forward to enlist, one is rejected at sight, the second is rejected for physical, medical or educational reasons, and the third is finally approved.

It can be said, therefore, that as far as the quality of the men coming forward is concerned the trend is in the right direction, but the disquieting factor is the falling off in the number of applicants, There were 80,203 applicants last year as against 68,061 this year, producing a decrease of 12,142. Luckily this decrease is more than off-set by the corresponding fall of 12,259 in the number of rejections.

The problem now facing the Recruiting Service is how to stem the downward trend in the numbers applying to join the Army. With the rejections at their present reduced rate, some 75,000 applicants a year should suffice to produce the required numbers. The solution of the problem would appear to lie in increased publicity for the Army. Recruiters find that a large section of the public are ignorant not only of the role performed by the Army in peace but also of the general conditions under which a soldier lives and works. An effort to dispel ignorance on the latter point was made this year when on certain days barracks were thrown open to the public who were invited to see for themselves the barrack rooms, recreation rooms, cook-houses, etc. These " At Home " days, as they were called, were very successful, if it is possible to judge by the attendance and the interest shown. The assistance of the Press in announcing and reporting on these functions was of the greatest value, and is much appreciated.

Another point which is not always realized is that a soldier's pay is only a small part of the benefits he receives in return for his services to the State. Besides his cash payments, he receives free housing, free meals, free clothing and free medical and dental attention ; a fact which is often forgotten when comparing a soldier's pay with a civilian's wages.

The effect of the state of the labour market on recruiting is difficult to estimate. On the one hand it may be possible to ascribe a dearth of recruits to improved trade conditions while, on the other, statistics show that 58·9 per cent. of this year's applicants were either in employment or had been so during the three months preceding their application to enlist.

An outstanding feature of recruiting is the fact that the best recruiter is the serving soldier himself. This is borne out by the statistics for the second quarter of the recruiting year which, as will be seen from Plate I, show a greater intake than any other quarter. It is during the second quarter, particularly in January, that serving soldiers are on furlough in the greatest numbers. Consequently, it may be inferred that soldiers on furlough influence their friends to join the Army.

4. Educational Training.—It will be observed from the figures given in this report that the high standard of education in the Army is being maintained.

The figures show that 1,092 men are in possession of the Special Certificate which is up to Matriculation Standard, and 18,330 men hold the 1st Class Certificate which is the equivalent of the School Leaving Certificate.

109,885 men are in possession of the 2nd Class Certificate, while 43,935 have obtained the 3rd Class Certificate.

This means that 94·31 per cent. are in possession of Army Educational Certificates.

The percentage of men uncertificated is 5·69 and this is mainly represented by recruits who are undergoing educational training.

All Instructors, Army Education Corps, recently recruited possess University degrees or recognised teaching qualifications, and recruits are thus assured of receiving educational training under qualified and trained instructors.

5. Discipline.—The discipline of the Army continues to be maintained at a high standard. The number of trials by Court-Martial has dropped from 2,059 in 1932 to 1,911 in 1935.

There has been a considerable decrease since 1934 in the offences of Striking and Violence, Insubordination, and Indecency.

An increase in Miscellaneous Civil Offences is probably due to the recently introduced procedure whereby Magistrates were invited to hand over to the Military Authorities soldiers who had committed minor civil offences.

All awards of the heavier sentences show a reduction since 1934. It is satisfactory to record that only 6 Penal Servitude sentences of 3 years were awarded (compared with 18 in 1934), and discharges with ignominy have dropped by 42 per cent. since the previous year.

It was found possible to close the Military Prison and Detention Barracks at Stirling in October, 1935. The only establishment of this kind now in use in the United Kingdom is that at Aldershot.

6. Supplementary Reserve.—The situation regarding the intake into the Supplementary Reserve is, on the whole, satisfactory. Excluding Category " B " of this reserve, which is administered by Territorial Army Associations, 2,346 recruits were obtained during this recruiting year. The figure last year was 2,508 representing a drop of 162 recruits.

In view of the large numbers of motor transport vehicles necessary to provide the means of supply of a modern army in the field, it is natural that there is a large demand for men whose peace-time occupation is that of motor-car, lorry or omnibus driver, to signify in peace their willingness to come forward in an emergency to follow their peace-time calling as soldiers. This is the role of the Supplementary Reservist in Category " C " of the Royal Army Service Corps (Transport). Such men receive a retaining fee or bounty of £6 per annum and have no obligation whatsoever unless and until the Army Reserve is called out.

The Royal Army Service Corps is quoted as an example to show the needs of the Supplementary Reserve (Category " C ") because this corps has the largest requirements in this type of reservist. Other corps in which there is room for more Supplementary Reservists (Category " C") are the Royal Engineers, the Royal Corps of Signals, the Royal Army Medical Corps and the Royal Army Ordnance Corps. Tradesmen who enlist in the Supplementary Reserve receive a retaining fee or bounty varying from £9 to £15 per annum according to their trade.

NOTES.—Courts-Martial on Native Troops and Civilians are not included.

The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.

* Also included in "Acquittals" shown in Table 1 (i).

NOTES AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period of one year in Section A, and in certain circumstances for a further period to complete two years from the date of transfer to the Reserve. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914-1918 it was not revived until 1925.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It formerly included Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Reservists are allowed to re-engage for further service in Section D (for periods of 4 years as a rule) subject to discharge on attaining the age of 42 (45 in the case of men of certain trades). To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 901 in 1926.

The Army Reserve (Section A) was recalled to the Colours in 1927, in connection with the formation of the Shanghai Defence Force.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1933.

It should be noted that, except in Part I and Table 1, Part II, the tables for the Regular Army refer only to regimental strength. Consequently they do not include men serving on the Staff and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments, such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army, or the Supplementary Reserve.

By Command of the Army Council,

H J Creedy

THE WAR OFFICE,
27th February, 1935.

PART I.

RECRUITING.

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 30th SEPTEMBER, 1934.

1. General.—Recruiting for the year ending 30th September, 1934, has been difficult. The intake of recruits was 3,277 less than in the previous year, a result which, in view of the difficulties, reflects credit on the work of all employed in the Recruiting Service.

The reduced intake of recruits may be ascribed in some measure to improved trade conditions, but more particularly to anti-war propaganda.

In regard to the latter point, it should be noted that the appeal for recruits is solely for the purpose of replacing the numbers which leave the Army annually on completion of Colour Service, etc. The rôle of the British Army is primarily that of a Defence and Police Force. As an illustration of this, it may be noted that on no less than 15 occasions since the Great War a few British troops have been the means of saving the lives and property of British subjects, and preventing bloodshed and tribal war.

2. Quality of Recruits.—The physique, moral tone and education of those who have joined during the year were maintained at a high standard.

Out of a total of 80,203 applicants to join the Army, only 25,564 were finally approved. Approximately 68 per cent. were rejected on account of physical, educational or other defects. It must, however, be remembered that the medical standard required of a soldier is equivalent to, if not higher than, that for a first-class insurance policy. It must be remembered also that many men are rejected for the Army on account of disabilities, which incapacitate them from the military point of view only, and which do not reflect on their general health. For this reason the figures cannot be taken as an indication of the health and physique of the Nation as a whole.

Of the number of applicants to join, 45·5 per cent. were either in employment or had been so during the preceding three months.

3. Supplementary Reserve.—There still appears to be some hesitation in joining this Reserve, despite the efforts which have been made to bring it to the notice of eligible candidates.

It may be stated briefly that the Supplementary Reserve is composed of tradesmen and non-tradesmen, who, in consideration of a retaining fee or bounty varying from £15 to £9 per annum according to trade, and £6 per annum for non-tradesmen, undertake military service in the event of mobilization of the Army Reserve. In times of peace Category "C" of the Supplementary Reserve is not required to undergo any training.

2,508 enlistments in Category "A," Category "C," and Category "B" (R.A.P.C.) were carried out by the Recruiting staff for the Supplementary Reserve in the year under review.

4. A tribute must again be paid to the Press for their assistance in publishing items of military interest, and also to the assistance given by Cinema firms.

NOTES.—Courts-Martial on Native Troops and Civilians are not included.

The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.

NOTES AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period of one year in Section A, and in certain circumstances for a further period to complete two years from the date of transfer to the Reserve. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914-1918 it was not revived until 1925.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It formerly included Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

OF THE ARMY RESERVE.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Reservists are allowed to re-engage for further service in Section D (for periods of 4 years as a rule) subject to discharge on attaining the age of 42 (45 in the case of men of certain trades). To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 2,169 in 1925, and 901 in 1926.

The Army Reserve (Section A) was recalled to the Colours in 1927, in connection with the formation of the Shanghai Defence Force.

Re-engagement for Section D was suspended from 2nd February, 1928, for the Royal Corps of Signals (with the exception of certain trades), Foot Guards, Infantry of the Line and Royal Tank Corps.

Re-engagement for the Infantry of the Line from Section B for Section D only was re-opened on 1st April, 1931, and suspended on 26th August, 1931.

Re-engagement for Section D was suspended from the 5th September, 1931, for the Household Cavalry, Cavalry of the Line and the Royal Artillery, and from 20th July, 1932, for the Royal Army Medical Corps.

Re-engagement for Section D for the Household Cavalry was re-opened on 1st April, 1933.

Re-engagement for Section D for the Royal Corps of Signals was wholly suspended on 1st April, 1934.

OFFICIAL HISTORY
OF THE GREAT WAR

MILITARY OPERATIONS
MACEDONIA. VOL. I.

The history of the campaign in Macedonia during the Great War will be completed in two volumes. This first volume follows the fortunes of the Armies in the field down to the Battle of Dojran in April and May, 1917. On the political side it includes the deposition of King Constantine of Greece in June, an event which put an end to the division of Greece into two hostile camps and brought her into the War on the side of the Allies.

In this history it has been necessary to pay far more attention than usual to international politics. The reader who would understand the origins and conditions of the Macedonian Campaign needs not only a commentary on British military policy but a sketch of the developments of British and French policy with regard to Greece.

While, therefore, the military problems are not less interesting and instructive than those of other campaigns, the student of political affairs will find in these pages an unusually detailed account of the action of the hidden springs behind the armed forces and of the effects of conflicting national policies upon the strategy of allied armies.
